MIRAGE

1964

Too often it is said that the Pioneer Spirit is dead among the youth of today. The purpose of the 1964 Mirage is to prove how wrong these skeptics are. The elements of the original pioneer spirit were loyalty, teamwork and a keen desire to better themselves and conditions for all men. In any pep rally loyalty among students at LHS is easily seen. Teamwork is evident from the football field to the debate team. But there is a time for seriousness, and in the classrooms students are ready to learn in order that someday they may do their part in making improvements in this constantly changing world. Because the pioneer spirit prevails in LHS today, the 1964 graduates will blaze exciting new trails in the space age.

first days of the new year

are rushed yet interesting

In the rush to begin her senior year, P. Walker receives warning to "take it easy."

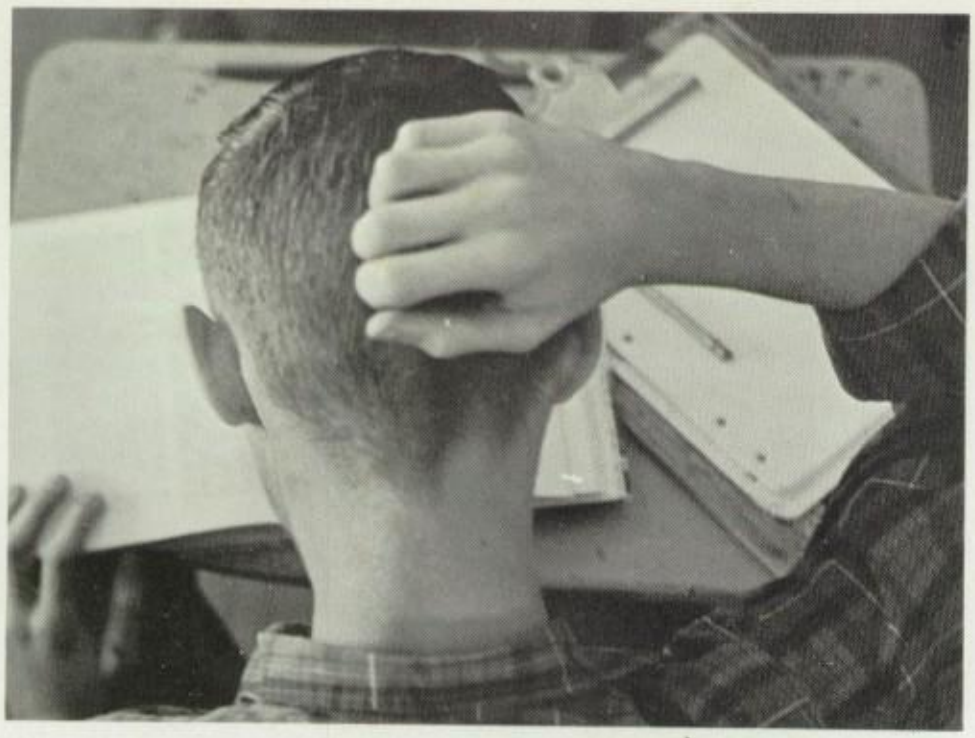
"Don't look now, but..." whispers M. Dryer to G. Good, J. Black, J. Heinze, and S. Matkin as Mr. Malin explains that Mr. Epperly is one of the many new teachers this year.

B. Mitchell and J. Cavin discover locker mix-up.

R. Hall, bewildered freshman, finds enrollment card confusing.

First day proves very trying as nothing seems to go right.

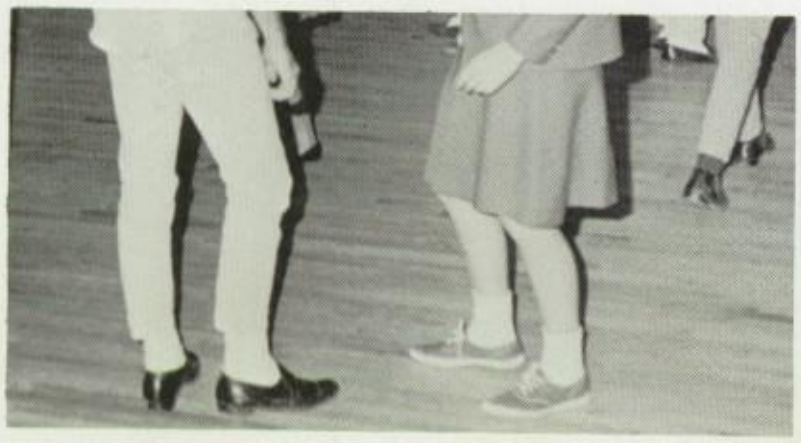
With the first day of high school completed, relief is evident.



Government takes more than contemplation; it takes endurance.

D. Betts and H. Betts begin their school year with a clean slate of nine years' perfect attendance.

Dancing feet are self-explanatory.



P. Davis assists B. Pomeroy and C. Cramer in cafeteria.

L. Schwerdtfeger demonstrates the art of rope-climbing as audience stands in awe.

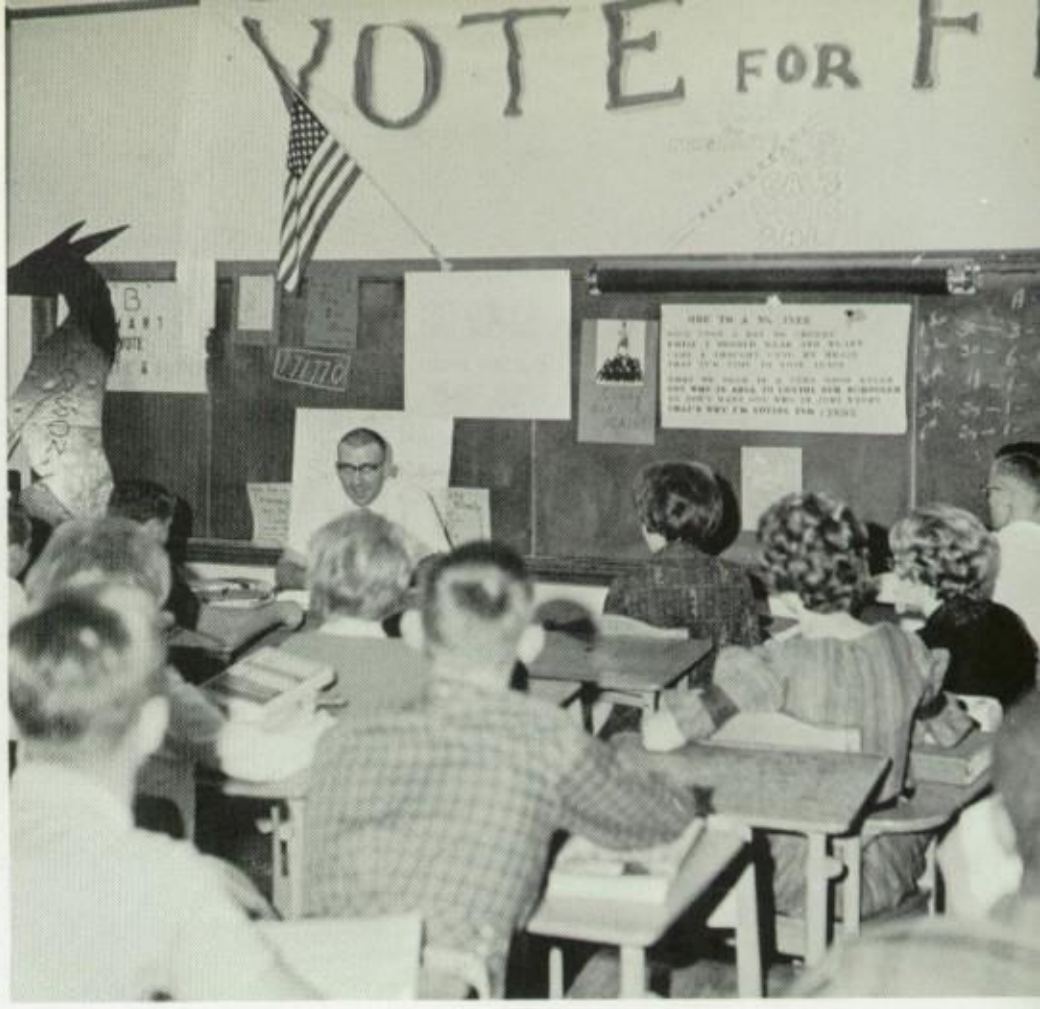
L. Gomer halts homework to dream of weekend plans.

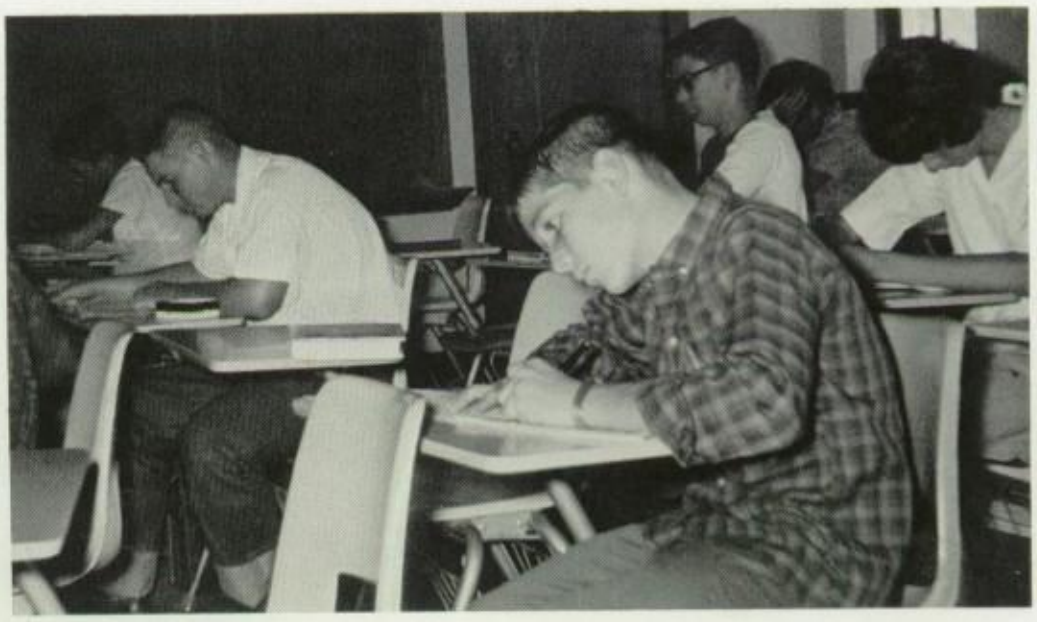


Student enthusiasm in government elections runs high in Mr. Johnson's class.

Bicycle confusion is typical scene.

Happy to help with Tomahawk decorations for after game dance, are J. Freeman, K. Glass, and B. Goodwin.

Facial expressions prove that tests are not getting easier.



"Oh, that answer is easy!" thinks S. Tucker as he confidently raises his hand.

J. Haddock, victim of characteristic cafeteria rush, retrieves dropped milk carton.

Students put heart and soul into singing school song.

Freshman phys ed girls support the Kennedy Physical Fitness Program.

mr. forker and board of education move to new building

Superintendent Marvin P. Forker is enjoying the quiet of his new office this year as he is away from the bustle of the between class interruptions since moving to the Administration Building on Kansas and Fourth during the late summer.

Mr. Forker will not be in the Liberal school system next year. After twelve years here, he has resigned to accept a similar position in Ottawa, Kansas. Of the thirty years he has been in the field of education, nineteen were served as superintendent. During this time he has held various state offices in the educational field. He was a prominent leader in local groups such as the Chamber of Commerce, Community Chest, and in the church.

This year the Board of Education also has a private room in which to meet. The new administration building not only provides a special meeting room for the Board of Education, but it also houses the much needed space for storage of supplies, four offices, and two walk-in vaults for use by the administration. The building also boasts two classrooms. The Office Practice and the Distributive Education classes meet in these classrooms.

The Board of Education are the policy makers for the school system, and working through their administrative officer, the superintendent of schools, are held responsible by the electorate for the quality of education in the Liberal Public Schools.

Many hours of deliberation are spent by the members in meeting the demands of more buildings, expanding the curriculum and supervising the expenditure of nearly $1,800,000 annually of local taxpayers' monies in the operation of the Liberal schools.

One of their greatest satisfactions was experienced during the past year when Liberal High School was classified as a Comprehensive High School, which is the highest rating given by the State Department of Education. Very few high schools in the state are so classified.

Principal Horace Malin will lock his office door for the 4,400th time this year as the class of 1964 graduates.

mr. malin retires after 20 years as principal of lhs

It is fitting that the first Mirage in larger format be dedicated to Principal H. E. Malin. It is a symbol of the progress during his twenty years as administrator at Liberal High School. This yearbook improvement is only one of the many advancements he has encouraged in the school and the city. Leader of students, faculty, church, and civic organizations, he has capably assumed the ever increasing responsibilities through the years.

Mr. Malin became principal of Liberal High School in 1944 and since then has shown his skill as administrator, counselor, orator, and disciplinarian. All students, freshman to senior, have benefitted from his advice to and personal interest in each individual in the school. It has been said that a good way to remember how to spell principal is to visualize the two words it contains. Mr. Malin symbolizes this description perfectly. Thank you, Mr. Malin, you are a true prince and pal.

Mr. Malin finds that it is close to impossible to complete a day's work without many extra hours.

As an orator, Mr. Malin often opens assemblies with a few short quips.

Measuring for caps and gowns is "old stuff" for Mr. Malin.

Interested in every student, Mr. Hall checks the progress of one in the student file. The student file in the office is in constant use.

mr. donald w. hall

assistant principal shares problems of administrator

Mr. Donald W. Hall, in his second year as assistant principal, has become accustomed to the numerous problems of an administrator. In his first assignment at Liberal High School, Mr. Hall was head basketball coach and taught driver's education. He continued in these positions for three years.

The constant flow of students requiring tardy slips, absentee slips, and library passes becomes as common as the rising of the sun. As assistant principal, Mr. Hall listens to the excuses and troubles of students. He is also in charge of the book rental system.

Mr. Hall has been hired to assume the duties of Principal Malin after he retires at the end of this school term.

Mrs. Lucille Sawyer, office secretary, finds few spare moments during the day in the office.

new teaching techniques tested in math and science

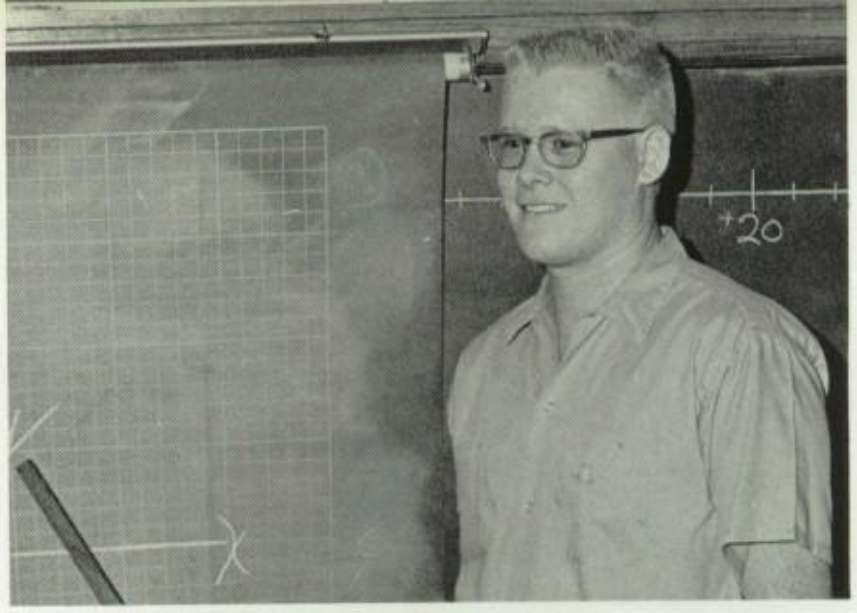
Mr. Vern H. Jantz finds new overhead projector helpful in demonstrating proofs to his Algebra II and senior math students. Mr. Jantz heads the math department.



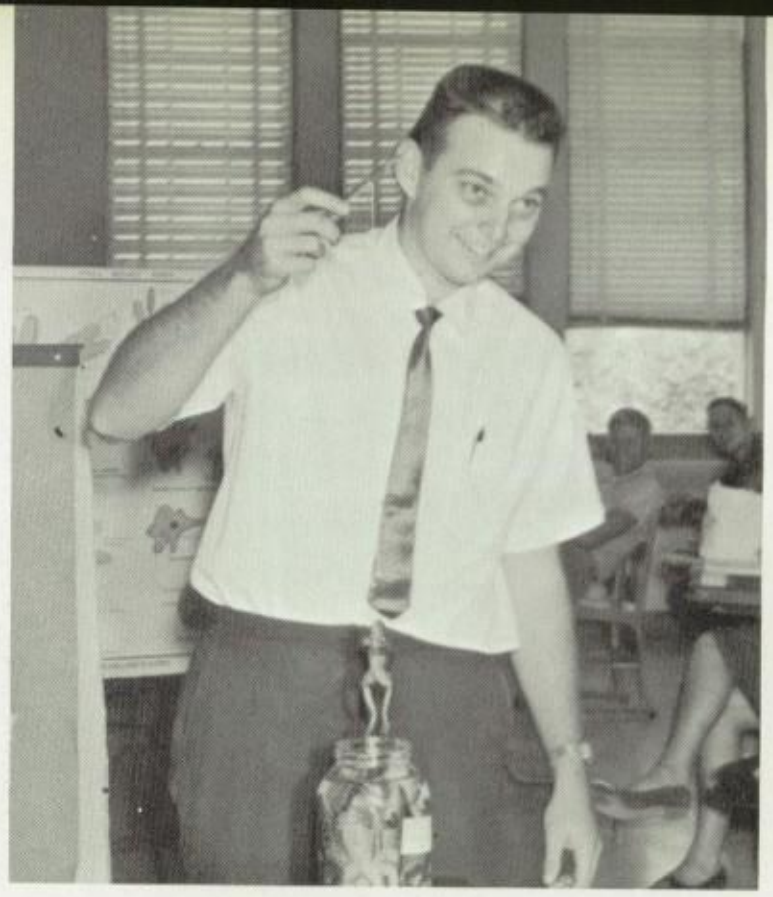
"Are you sure that x=y?" asks Mr. Dale Sprague, instructor of general math and Algebra 1.

"Is this a theorem or theory?" wonders Mrs. Aneta Compton, as she checks a geometry quiz. Along with other duties, Mrs. Compton is a co-sponsor of F.T.A.

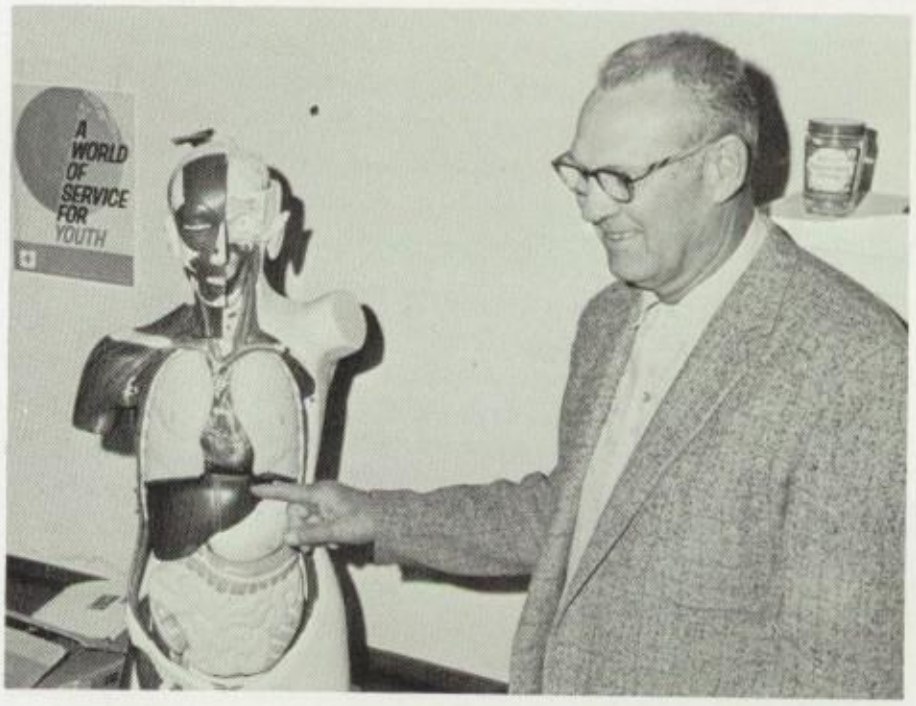
"How about that pi!" exclaims Mr. Billy Clagg, instructor of Algebra I and II, as he hesitates by the stairs.

Mrs. Ione Randolph demonstrates the use of quantities to her Algebra I students. Mrs. Randolph also teaches general math.

Rechecking the vacuum pump before conducting an experiment, Mr. Larry Ling chuckles over mistakes of his chemistry and physics students. Mr. Ling is head of the science department.



"Anyone for frog's legs?" asks Mr. Jim Dye with a fishy grin. Mr. Dye instructs classes in biology and chemistry.



"I think Oscar does have an ulcer!" laughs biology teacher, Mr. A. H. Freeman.

Armed with a thermos jug of coffee and heavy briefcase, biology instructor, Mr. Ted King starts the day cheerfully. Mr. King is Science Club sponsor.

Engrossed in a new film for use in general science is Mr. James Curtis.

english department stresses communication through composition

Mrs. Evelyn Varah, head of the English department, is engrossed in a confiscated piece of modern American literature. Mrs. Varah teaches English III and IV and sponsors Girl Reserves.

Mrs. Lila King checks on vital statistics during a biography study in English I and II.

"I don't consider 'The Raven' a limerick, George," quips Mr. Frank DeSpain as he hands back tests to his freshmen English class.

Mrs. Ella Penny finds records helpful in instructing her English II students. Mrs. Penny is an FTA sponsor.

Film strips are amusing as well as informative according to Mrs. Anita Sprague who teaches English I and II.

"Books, books, books! Yearbooks, pocket books, English books. Who could I get to buy these?" wonders Mrs. Hope Brauer, yearbook advisor when she is not teaching English I and II.

Once in a while, even an English III teacher has to use the dictionary. In this case the teacher is Mrs. Mary Ramsey. She is a junior class sponsor.

"Don't get the wrong idea," urges Mr. Gerhard Ziesch to his German students, "this is just a study aid." Mr. Ziesch also teaches English II.

"How would you like to make tacos with this?" asks Mrs. Charlotte Jernigan of her Spanish classes. Mrs. Jernigan is a junior class sponsor.

Miss Claudette Peters, English III instructor, demonstrates a new way to stay on your toes in class. Miss Peters is also a junior sponsor.

"All right, who threw my book out the window?" asks Mr. Glen Olson with an ominous snicker. Mr. Olson teaches Latin I and II.

history and social science social science teachers create better insight of world

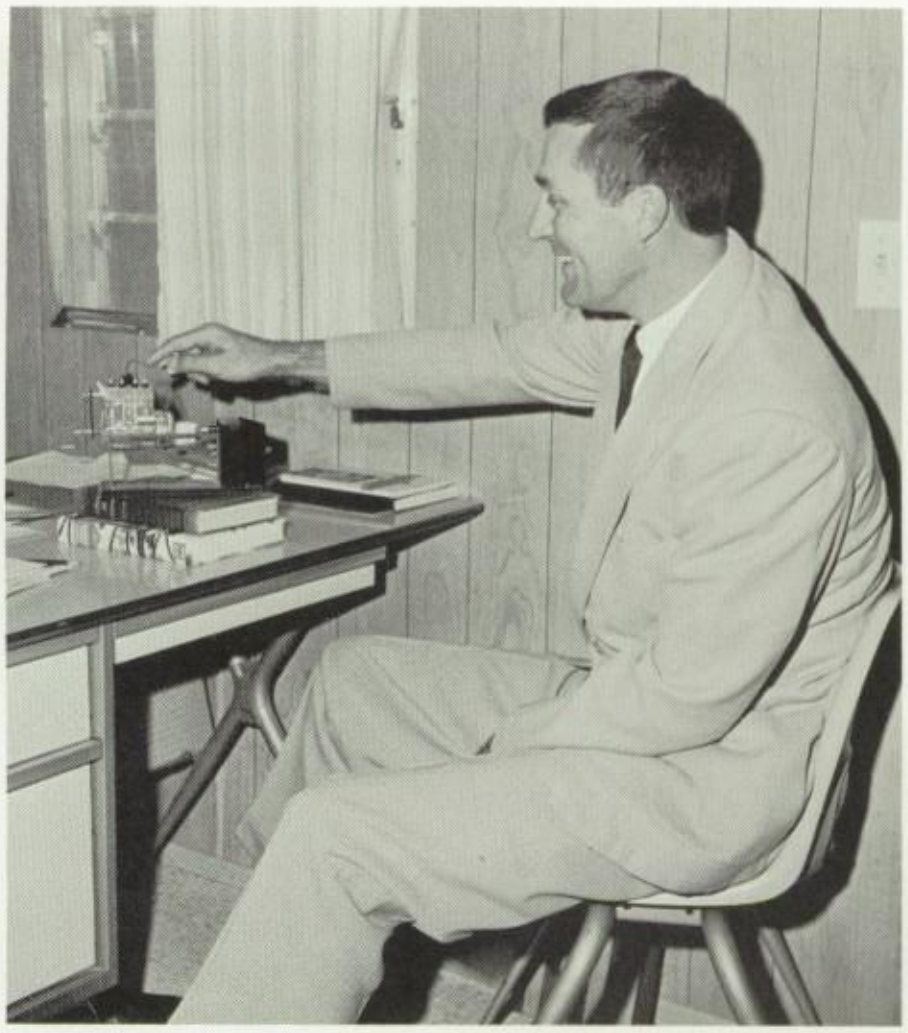
Mr. Jack Johnson, surrounded by campaign posters, discusses politics in government classes. He also teaches world geography and is a junior class sponsor.

As a junior sponsor, Mr. Ben Tisdale enjoys the feel of the green backs turned in for junior class magazine sales. He teaches in the history and social science department.

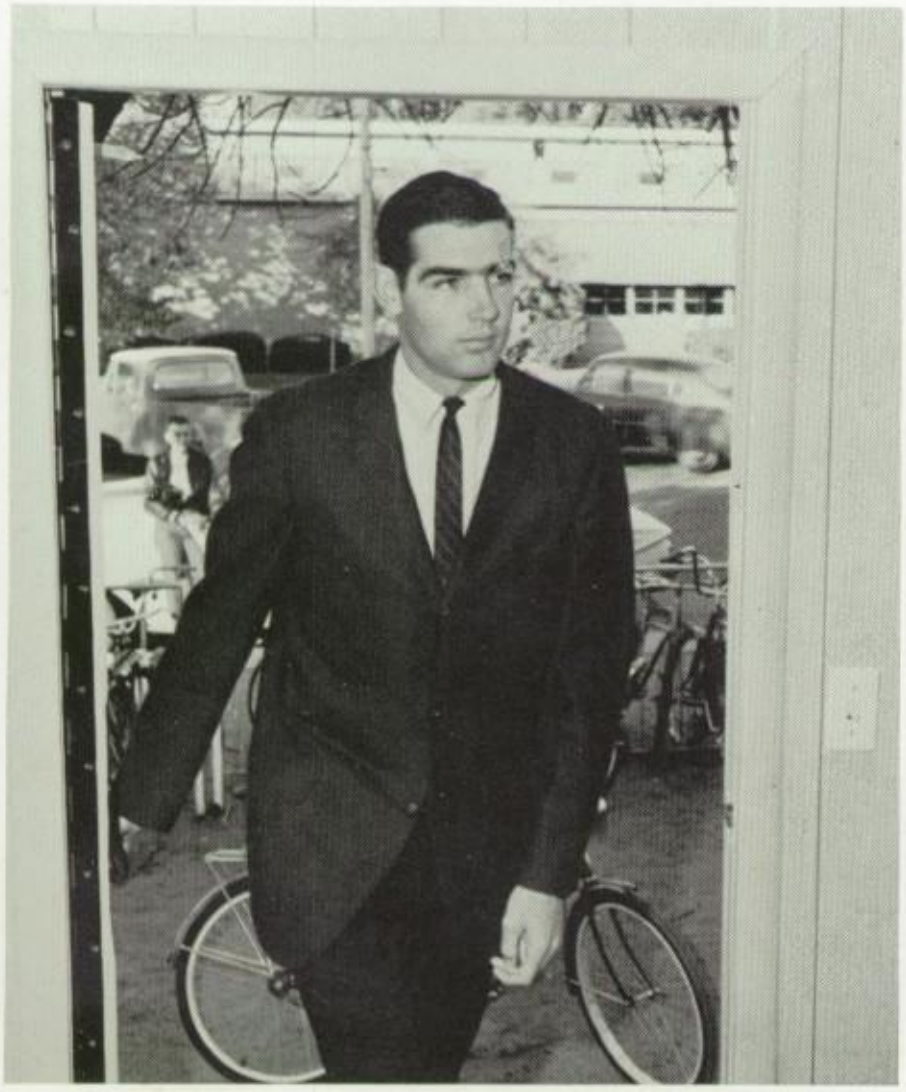
Mrs. Thelma Stephens, emerges from her closet with equipment for writing quotations on the board for family living students. Mrs. Stephens also teaches world history and is Ushers Club sponsor.

Mr. Robert Williams looks over a newspaper article on teenagers as a psychology assignment. He also teaches American history.

"This will be a difficult test," warns Mr. Ted J. Snyder to his world history class. Mr. Snyder also teaches economics and coaches wrestling.



A freshman coach, Mr. Wendell Palmer, who has classes in driver's education and government, shows in miniature the working of a car motor.



Mr. Cecil Epperly starts his day in American history class but ends it in the gym, as he is head basketball coach.

Mr. Mickey Hallam clarifies locations by the use of maps in government study. He is also junior class sponsor.

industrial arts and business various trades prepare students for careers

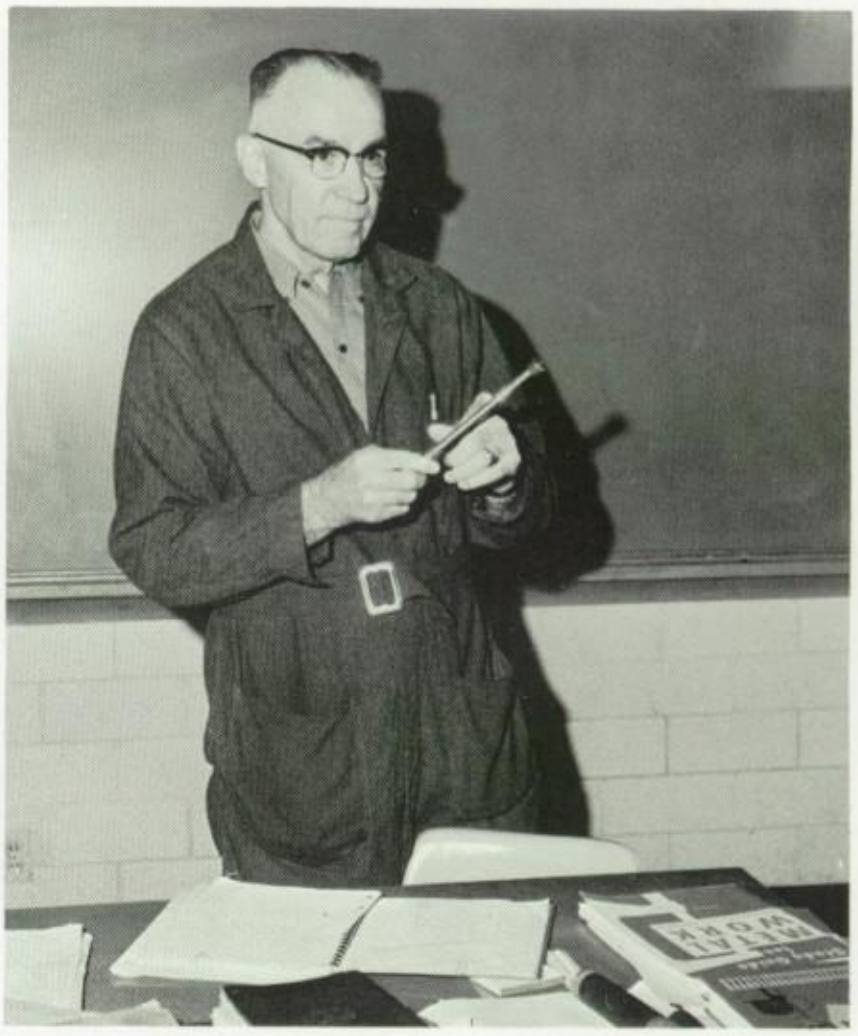
Mr. Fred Hill is preoccupied, checking constructions for architectural drawing. Mr. Hill also teaches Mechanical Drawing I and II and cabinet making.



Mr. Charles C. Griffin finds tools useful in shop and agriculture.

Demonstrating the bandsaw for woodwork is Mr. Ray Fulton, also instructor of shop math.

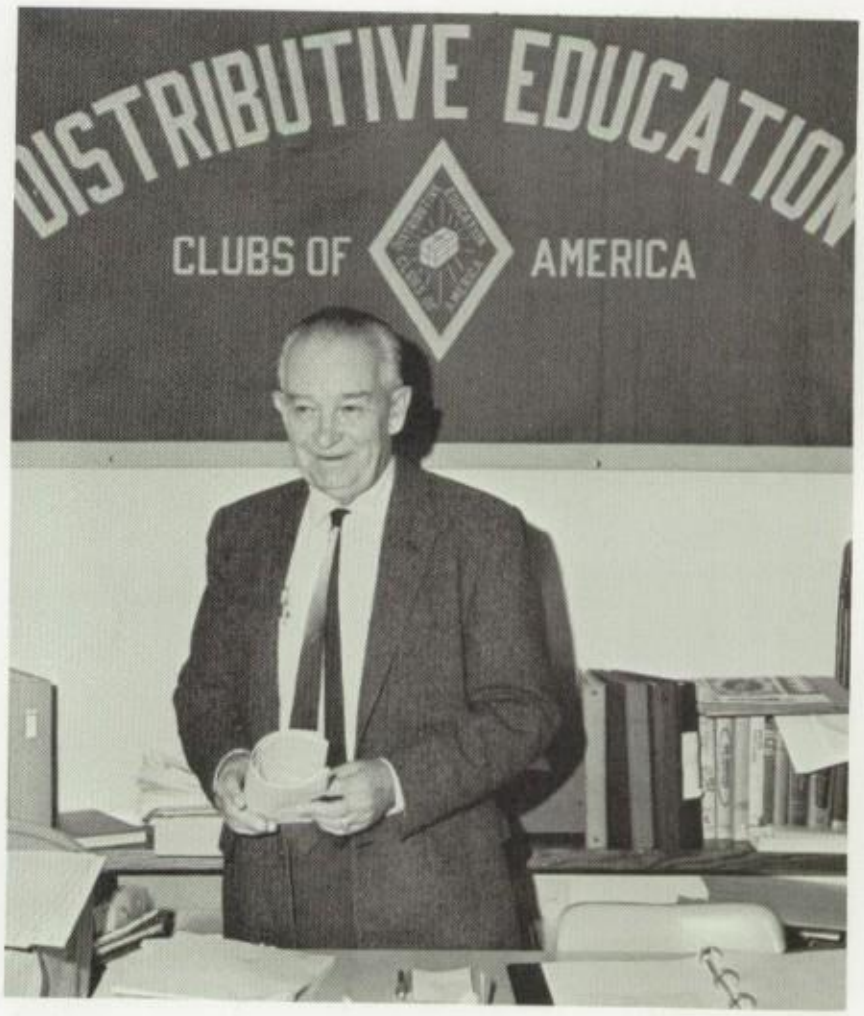
"Changing tires is part of my job," sighs Mr. Larry Koochel. He teaches auto mechanics, Shop 2 and electricity.

Preparing for daily bookkeeping, shorthand, and typing lessons is Miss Ava Ruth Humphrey. She also sponsors the Pep Club and the senior class.

"All right, class, best position.... Ready type," begins Miss Ruby Unruh. Miss Unruh is instructor of Typing I and shorthand.

"Sales of candy are good!" exclaims Miss Shirley Dryden to office practice girls. She sponsors the senior class and BECK.

Instructor of business math and general business is Mr. Bryce Neaville. He is also a member of the football coaching staff.



"You'd think some of the distributive education class could do my paper work," moans Mr. Carl Baker. He sponsors DECA.

music, speech, and drama

the arts, fine and useful, prepare students for life

Mr. Tom Ward does a cool progressive jazz number on the valve trombone. The Redskin band always makes a fine showing under Mr. Ward's direction.

Mr. Dennis Wright, deep in concentration, listens to a debate speech. This is Mr. Wright's first year as instructor of forensics.

Showing the correct finger position is Mr. Robert Edwards, orchestra director who is building interest in string instruments in both grade and high school.

"Saundra, stay in character," quips Miss Karen Penner at senior play rehearsal. Miss Penner teaches speech and dramatics and directs class plays.

Watching Mr. Clarence Hooper's hands inspires vocalists to make it sound good. Mr. Hooper directs Madrigal and both large and small chorus groups.

useful and creative arts

Mrs. Catherine Tendick stitches a garment during one of her sewing class periods. She is sponsor of Junior Red Cross and of the senior class.

"I'm an educated broom pusher," brags Mr. Dick Fisher. Mr. Fisher is the art instructor, golf coach, and sponsors the Art Club.

Doing dishes the simple way is demonstrated to foods class by Mrs. Mary Davis.

Miss Vera O'Neal checks oven temperature for a foods student. Miss O'Neal is also a junior sponsor.

"Get out your knitting needles girls," suggests Mrs. Jeanette Renfroe to her sewing class.

Under the supervision of Principal Malin, the student council helps with decisions concerning students and activities. Among these are new student orientation, school elections, homecoming, and special services such as community chest.

"office girls" tread many a mile for day's work

Specially selected for grades and adaptability for adjustment are the junior high and senior high monitors. They are responsible for collecting all absentee slips and posting an account of student attendance. For assisting principals Mr. Malin and Mr. Brewer with errands and office needs one hour a day, they are awarded a credit at the years end.

A test was conducted by the Mirage Staff to find how far a monitor walks on her tour of duty. By using a pedometer, a monitor found that she walks an average of two miles each hour. About half of this is walked up stairs.

The four junior high monitors and the nine senior high monitors make up a very effective communications network. Principals Mr. Malin and Mr. Brewer have found their services invaluable.

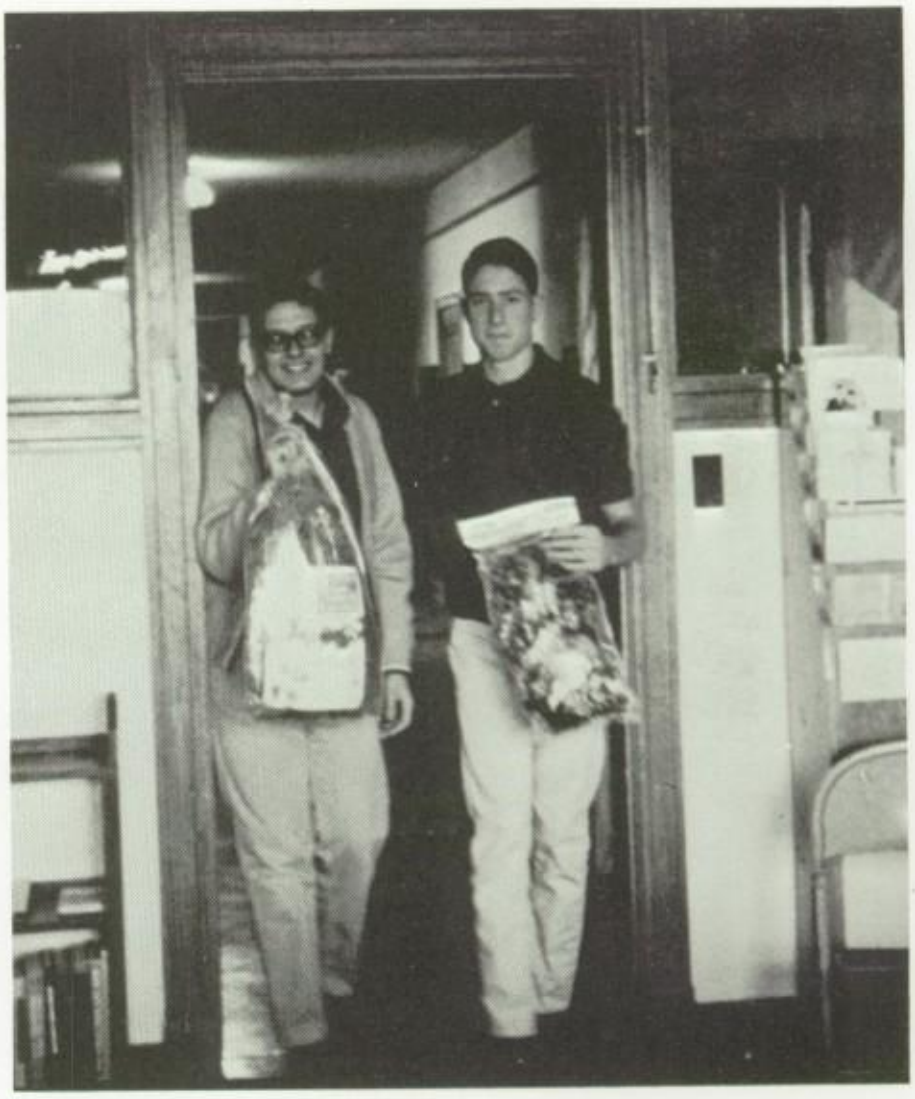
clubs merge to present

easter program -

Girl Reserves and Hi-Y are organizations for girls and boys interested in developing Christian behavior. The clubs cooperatively concentrate toward this goal during Holy week in presenting short devotionals.

Hi-Y is the boys' organization sponsored by Mr. Harold Adams. He, along with President Richard Bennett, supervised the activities of the fifty members. One of these activities was the selling of Christmas holly to finance their Father-Son Banquet.

The counterpart of Hi-Y is G.R., sponsored by Mrs. Evelyn Varah and presided over by Carolyn Hall. The girls participated in the "peanut pal" tradition at Christmas time and held their annual Mother-Daughter Banquet in the spring.



"Deck the halls with boughs of holly..." At least that's what L. Platz, top salesman, and R. Bennett, president, hope will be done with their Christmas holly.

A. Harding sets up altar that will be used during devotionals for the Holy Week services.

future teachers attend conference at dodge city

Another successful year for the FTA, founded for the purpose of preparing students for the challenge of teaching, was completed under the sponsorship of Mrs. Ella Penny, and the new co-sponsor, Mrs. Anita Compton.

This being the 26th anniversary of FTA, the club designated December 16 as Recognition Day and entertained the faculty at a tea immediately after school. Earlier in the day Christmas corsages were pinned on each instructor.

Mrs. Annette Baldwin, who did practice teaching under Mrs. Penny, presents a lesson to sophomore English class.

hospital aides explore

medical careers

Seven senior girls work at Epworth hospital with the desire to learn more about nursing or doctor's training. These aides work many hours free of charge.

The seven girls serving this year were Candy Andrews, Susan Creathbaum, Sandra Dobbs, Martha Dryer, Karen Logsdon, Sally Matkin, and Robin Reneau. Several of these girls plan to go into the field of nursing after graduation. The practical experience gained this year will be put into good use in the years as a nurse.

Red Cross was originally formed to help the sick, needy, and aged. The members this year worked to enlighten foreign countries, made stuffed animals for children, and collected baskets of food for the poor. Mrs. Tendick, sponsor, and Sue Hedrick, president, designated the committees for special projects.

novice debators win

first-place trophy

Under the new direction of Coach Dennis Wright, the forensics squad had better than a 50% win-loss record and had won a first place trophy before the first semester had expired. The topic so successfully debated by the 20 students of forensics was that it be resolved: That the Federal Government should provide complete medical care for all citizens at public expense.

Proudly fondling their first-place trophy are novice debaters S. Schmitt and D. Tedford.

drama club produces all-school play

Newly organized this year, the drama club aided the speech and music departments. The members of Masque and Claque, with their sponsor Miss Karen Penner, not only helped build the sets for the junior and senior plays, but also were present for the striking of the sets. They were also responsible for the tableaus for the Christmas program which was given by the A Capella Choir. Masque and Claque also sponsored an all-school play which gave the under-classmen a chance to participate in acting, with the members of Masque and Claque in charge of the directing, lighting, and other technical fields.

Requirements for admission to Masque and Claque were: working on sets or helping with plays not less than five hours a semester, being present for the striking of all sets, and attending all meetings.

Acknowledgment for a year of hard work came at the end of the year when a banquet was held to honor outstanding participants.

"I didn't know that was the way I sounded!" laughs K. Franzen to amused witnesses Miss Penner and C. Cousland.

Hard at work building a set are C. Cousland, A. Harding, J. McClure, F. Hines, S. Dobbs, and C. Hall.

Rehearsing a scene, G. Good, as a critic, expresses distaste at the singing of M. Hayes, as M. Dryer, J. Russell and R. McMullen look on portraying the proud family.

Old and new members devoted endless hours to projects, such as ceramics, crafts, posters, the Halloween paintings on business store windows, and preparing drawings for the televised show on November 17.

They worked with Mr. Fisher, sponsor, to earn money for the trip to the Nelson Art Gallery in Kansas City in the spring.

Mr. Fisher points out the fine details of drawings to L. Turner, P. Casady, J. Skinner, and L. Baxter.

Directing people to their seats at school and city functions were 17 junior and senior girls, active in the Usher's Club. The girls alternated, allowing each an equal number of times to serve. This schedule was made by the secretary, Linda Ewing, and the sponsor, Mrs. Stephens.

Last summer a picnic in Light's Park for the outgoing and incoming members allowed the girls to become better acquainted.

new clubs generate interest in specialized areas

Perusing, judging, and selecting literary contributions of English students required hours of labor for staff members. Three types of literature; short stories, essays, and poetry, were received.

The group found their work invaluable in the experience they received and were often pleasantly surprised at the quality of work submitted. The reward for all the "blood, sweat, and tears" came when Miss Claudette Peters, sponsor, opened the first magazine in the spring.

For the purpose of studying Roman customs, culture, and history, Mr. Olson's Latin club was formed. All students in Latin I and Latin II classes were eligible for membership. Their distinctive garb was the white Roman toga which included a purple stripe for Latin II students. A senate meeting and a slave auction were re-enacted in the spring.

The science club sponsored the third annual Science Fair on February 28, held demonstration meetings where individual club members presented projects, hosted evening meetings inviting the two junior high science clubs to hear out-of-town speakers and took field trips. By popular demand, a dance was held at the close of the year.

Fight! Fight!—This was the cry of the crowds at the football and basketball games of the '63-'64 season. Behind this spirit were the cheerleaders, with their shouts of victory and praise. They pushed the spirit at the pep assemblies before the games.

Selection of the girls was made by teachers in the spring, so that the Varsity and B-team cheerleaders could attend the summer clinic at the University of Oklahoma. In the week at clinic, they learned new actions, techniques for voice control, and how to get response from crowds.

L-Club consisted of boys who lettered in one of the seven sports in this school. These sports included football, basketball, wrestling, track, tennis, and golf.

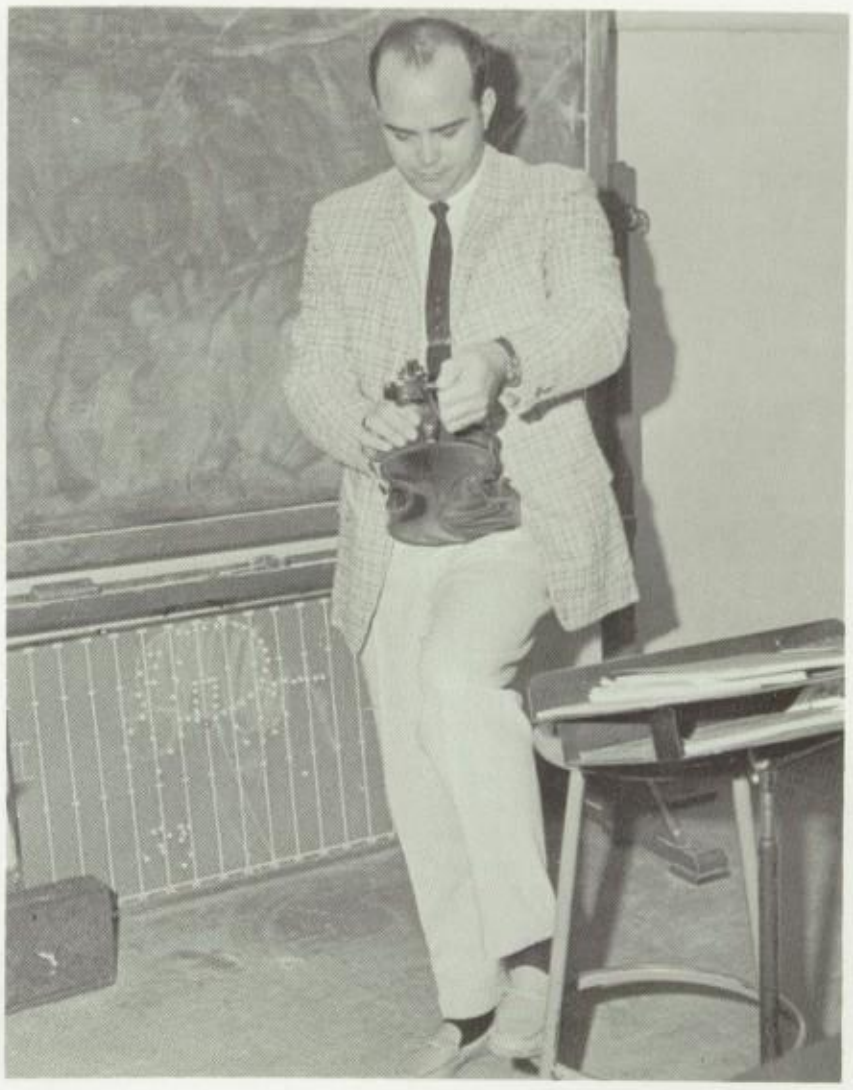
musicians profit from festival, contests and concerts

The orchestra attended the Western Kansas Orchestra Festival at Dodge City this year. The high school orchestra was directed by Charles Emmons from the University of Missouri and the junior high by Robert Hallman from Wichita University. Several soloists and some ensembles competed in out-of-town contests.

A concert at the last of the year was held by the community orchestra, high school orchestra, junior high orchestra, and the combined grade school orchestras.

Public appearances highlighted orchestra activities.



Mr. Edwards, director, plays many instruments but specializes in strings.

outstanding band is source of pride for school

The band played at football games, basketball games and pep rallies, with the purpose of intensifying the pep and fire of the crowds and team.

On Saturday, November 30, the members marched in the annual Christmas parade. Eight bands participated in a clinic on December 14. Later in the year the band presented formal concerts. This year, Tom Ward, director, formed a freshman band, instead of combining them with the high school band.

The Kansas Kuties, composed of 34 girls selected from band members, performed at halftimes of games, showing precision in marching.

music encourages talent and appreciation

The annual Christmas program, and a Thanksgiving assembly program on November 27 were performances of the A Capella this year. Easter brought the Messiah, and in the spring the choir sang at the Commencement and Baccalaureate exercises. The group met fourth hour each day.

From A Capella Choir, fifteen singers were selected by director Clarence Hooper, for the Madrigals. These singers entertained civic groups. They practiced at seven o'clock on Monday nights.

new vocal groups

Because of the number of students wanting to receive vocal training this year, Mr. Hooper organized a freshman and sophomore chorus. In the freshman group there were 55 students, and 50 were in the sophomore group. The total number in the music department was approximately 160, including the A Cappella choir.

These three groups performed in the Christmas program which was presented for the public in Rindom Hall. The operetta, "Down In The Valley," was given in February after the entire music department had worked cooperatively to make it a new successful event.

"alice-sit-by-the-fire" is "blazing" success

Director, Karen Penner, spent six weeks in concentrated work on technicalities of the senior class play, Alice-Sit-by-the-Fire, by J. M. Barrie. The cast met each week night from 7 to 10 for practices.

The play was a comical three act cut from a girl's 1905 diary. It centered around Amy's desire to save her mother from family scandal.

Performances were held November 21, and 25 in Rindom Hall.

mirage staff

long hours, no pay, frantic moments mark staffer's day

During the early hours of the morning, the school was invaded by a unique species of homosapiens—the Mirage Staff. The staff, under the sponsorship of Mrs. Hope Brauer, planned pictures, forgot pictures, lost pictures, wrote copy, revised copy, toiled on the unending index, typed senior dope, retyped senior dope, and when these seemingly infinite jobs were done, began their layouts.

Liberal was host at a workshop in October on yearbook techniques presented by Frank Wright of the American Yearbook Company. Staffs from seven surrounding schools attended.

The first Mirage Coronation Dance for the crowning of the Mirage King and Queen, was a successful event. The theme, "Moon River," was carried out with crepe paper decorations of blue and white.

"The proper cropping of this picture is vital to the interest of the page," warns A. Harding, co-editor, as J. Heidbreder listens intently.

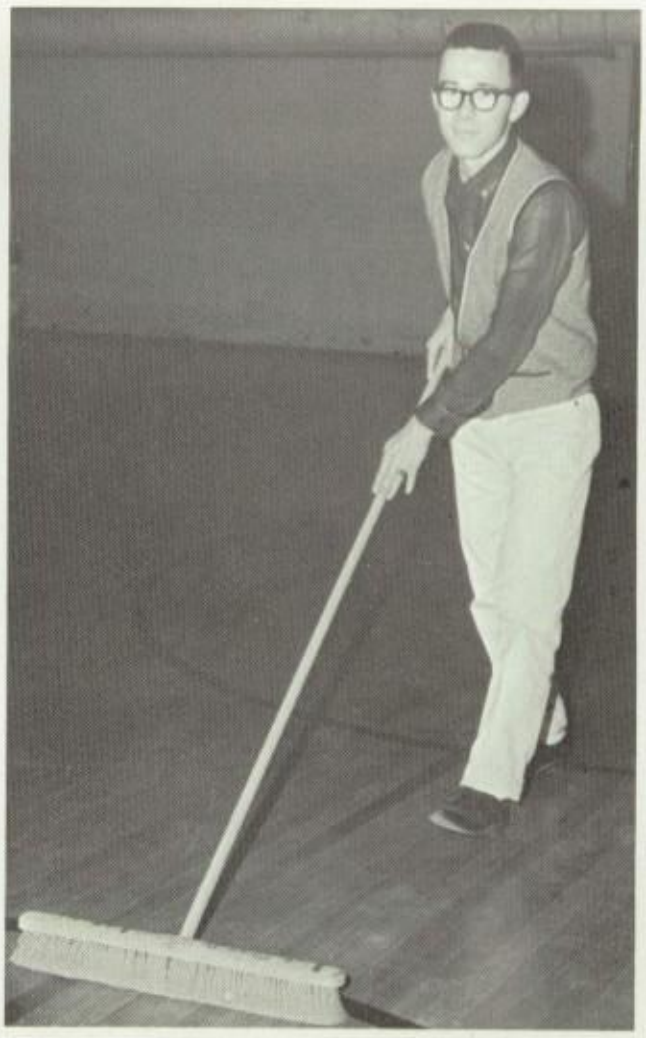
Mrs. Hope Brauer, burning the midnight oil, scratches her head wondering where "that ridiculous picture belongs."

"Even using my double-time method, I'll never get all this typed," moans N. Jones, typist.

"That's my picture," insists K. Crews, activities, to her congenial cohort D. Tedford, activities.

"If you'd get here before they lock the doors, you wouldn't have to resort to such undignified entrances." Again and again C. Hall, co-editor, admonishes B. Beringer, photographer.

Engrossed in the absorbing work of compiling the index are D. Hughs, faculty and index, and J. McReynolds, classes.



R. LeDoux, classes, finds there is more to putting a yearbook together than making layouts as he cleans the small gym after the Coronation dance.

"What method am I going to use to extract these funds I need?" wonders S. Clancy, co-editor. Solving her problem, she pleads for the money from G. Good, business manager.

"How dare you!" screams K. Crews as D. Tedford makes an ungallant proposal during the Mirage skit. G. Good and C. Hall are the amused onlookers.

F. Wright, Myers representative, reads contest instructions to the students of the workshop in Liberal.

"I never knew concession work was so exhausting," moans T. Heusner as she collapses on a counter, as A. Reever and N. Shorb begin clean up.

"We won, we won!" squeals S. Rogers as she hugs R. Epperly after victory.

A colorful asset to the pep rallies were the sophomore cheerleaders, P. Armstead, K. Glass and S. Catlin.

injuries plague this year's football squad

The Redskins' football season was seriously hampered by injuries. Losing seven starters during the year because of injuries did not help the Skins' bid for a winning season.

After getting off to a slow start with defeats from Pratt 21-0 and Garden City 14-13, the Redskins finally started playing up to their potential. Rising to the occasion of the first home game of the year, the Skins' defeated Dodge City 27-21, but dropped their next encounter to Ulysses 7-0. Rebounding with more desire and determination, the Redskins were untouched for the next three weeks. Liberal's defense gave up only 21 points during this three week period while the offense was scoring 90 points. Liberal defeated St. Mary's 43-0, Hugoton 34-14, and the Hays Cadets, who were rated twelfth in the state, 13-7. The Skins were defeated in the last two games of the season by teams from Oklahoma. Guymon won 14-6 as did Alva 28-6.

The season was summed up by Coach Kayo McGillivray who said, "It was one heck of a season. Everything from injuries to attitudes hurt us." McGillivray said that he is looking forward to more all-around experience and depth to meet him on next year's squad

record not representative of team's desire

The Redskins were not successful in their bid for a winning season this year. The lack of experience and depth were key factors that slowed the Redskins' cause. Eight of the fifteen squad members were sophomores. The sophomores' early experience and early education in the art of slow ball makes next year's outlook brighter.

The ball control technique has proven effective in college basketball. The game is slower, but the shooting is more accurate and percentages are greater. With experience and confidence, slow ball has been called "the only way to play basketball."

The Redskins were led by new coach, Cecil Epperly, who is in his first year of coaching after graduation from Oklahoma State University. Mr. Epperly was the eleventh highest scorer in the history of OSU.

The one thing that must be remembered by all fans and followers of basketball is: It matters not if you win or lose, but how you play the game.

new coach heads redskin grapplers

The wrestling program was under the direction of new coach Ted Snyder. With only five experienced seniors, he relied upon sophomores and juniors to provide much of the team's scoring punch.

The Redskins won three and lost five of their eight dual matches this year. For the first time Liberal had its own tournament in which the Skins placed fourth out of five teams. The team also participated in the Garden City Invitational where they again took fourth place.

The district matches were held at Garden City on February 7-8. Boys qualifying were eligible to compete in the regional tournament at Russell on February 14-15. State matches were held at Colby February 21-22.

Saundra C. and Carolyn H., my equals; it was hard work but we made it. Tempers flared and words flew but we've survived. With all three of us in the Senior Play, that first deadline was hard to meet—come to think of it, we didn't meet it! We worked and we worked and we worked, and there was always more work to do. We had this in common though; we loved every minute of it. Gloria G., you did your job well—too well. To get money out of you was such a struggle, I sometimes felt it wasn't worth it to try. We thought we learned a lot at the K-State Workshop this summer, but there was still a lot left to learn—we sure learned a lot of it the hard way! Jan H., I'm sorry about our revisions and reductions, but you and the coach didn't have to throw us out of the gym that time! There's more than Sports in a yearbook, you know. Kathy C., you added spice to Activities and I'll never forget "Fight! Fight!" There was an added interest behind the glass door and I was amazed and proud of your will power to keep on working. Dan T., with all your trips to take tests and all those anonymous post cards, I'm surprised you ever got to your pages. I thought we'd never find those G.R. names! And Bruce B., you did such a good job when you finally staggered sleepily into the room at 8:45. You took some superb pictures, it's too bad that you forgot to set your synchronizer sometimes. Donna H., index gets awfully tedious, but you were cheerful and willing. Judy M., you learned your alphabet, I imagine you can alphabetize in your sleep now. Congratulations on being our master saleswoman! Robert L., your added help and readiness to work often was the brightest spot of the morning. Thanks for your help on our dance. Neoma J., you were certainly a life saver. Your able typing and dependability saved us many long hours. And at last we come to Mrs. B., the backbone of the yearbook. You tactfully handled the differences between the staff members and too often took over jobs that we didn't have time to do. You held us together and I am not flattering you to say, without you there wouldn't be a Mirage this year.

It was a year full of shocks. Mr. Malin retired and Mr. Forker resigned his post. I'll never forget the day it was announced that President Kennedy had been assassinated. No picture could have shown the complete silence in the halls, or the utter disbelief of losing such a great man mirrored on the faces of students and faculty.

But there were happy days, too; our snowball fight, the relief when we finally hit a deadline and the confusion in the preparation for the first coronation dance. I'm glad the office and faculty were so helpful in giving us information, because our yearbook would have been two months later without it.

We learned a lot this year, not only about journalism, but about the school and the people in it. We learned how to do a little old fashioned "politickin'", too, Thank you, staff, for the hard work and long hours which were more than any of us had expected and I've yet to hear a complaint. Each one of you did an excellent job and together we've put out a yearbook of which we can be proud.

Ann H.
